ANIMALS THAT WEEP.

Dugong Tears Preserved by the Malays as a Love Charm.

While the act of laughing may be peculiar to man, the same is not true of weeping, which, if we are to accept the testimony of a French naturalist, is a manifestation of emotion that is met with in divers animals.

It is said that the creatures that weep most easily are the ruminants, with whom the act is so well known that it has given rise to trivial but accurate expression, "to weep like a calf." All hunters know that the stag weeps, and we are also told that the bear sheds tears when it comes to a consciousness of its last hour. The giraffe is not less sensitive and regards with tearful eyes the hunter who has wounded it. This animal also weeps through downright nostalgia. Dogs also are held to be lachrymose, and the same holds in the case of certain monkeys. Sparrman states the elephant sheds tears when wounded or when it perceives that it cannot escape.

Aquatic animals, too, it appears, are able to weep. Thus, many authorities agree, dolphins at the moment of death draw deep sighs and shed tears abundantly. A young female seal was observed to weep when teased by a sailor. St. Hilaire and Cuvier recount, on the authority of the Malays, that when a young dugong is captured the mother is sure to be taken also. The little ones then cry out and shed tears. These tears are collected with great care by the Malays and are preserved as a charm that is certain to render a lover's affection lasting.—New York Press.

A PROPHETIC JEWEL.

Peculiar Ring That Was Owned by Marquise du Barry.

Marquise du Barry, whose lovely head fell into the basket beneath the guillotine in expiation of her levity, extravagance and folly, had in her possession a stone of which the Paris jewelers were unable to tell the precise nature.

There appeared upon it below the surface and as if under water an outline of a picture containing human figures. Strange to relate, when first the gem was given to its afterward unfortunate possessor this outline was not clear, but after it had been some months in her possession it grew more vivid.

One day the negro servant boy, Lamor, who was afterward instrumental from revenge in the downfall of the Du Barry, declared, looking at the jewel, that he could decipher the figure of a woman with disheveled hair leaning before a scaffold and surrounded by a crowd, while beside her stood the executioner.

A strange but authenticated circumstance is that the negro servant boy precisely described the guillotine. Dr. Guillotine had not then invented his celebrated instrument of death, nor had the horrors of the revolution begun.

Snatching the jewel from the hand of the servant, Mme. du Barry examined it, saw the kneeling woman, the angry crowd, the death knife falling and, with a cry of agony, fell senseless to the floor.

Fly Traps of Spiders' Nests.

Spiders' nests are used in Mexico as fly traps. During the rainy season the villages are invaded by numbers of flies and other insects. To rid a house of these pests the natives hang the branch of a tree bearing a spider's nest to a nail in the ceiling. The surface of the nest enlarges concentrically after each capture of an insect, and it exercises an irresistible attraction on flies. When a spider's nest is opened it is found to be filled with insects. Experiments made with paper nests so manufactured as to be exact copies of the real nests show that flies will not enter them. Though very small and apparently insignificant, the inhabitant of the mosquero attacks insects far more important in size than the largest housefly. The wasp is one of its favorite victims, and the wasp always gets the worst of the struggle.—Harper's Weekly.

A Silk Producing Caterpillar.

In Assam, where the natives call it "eri," a silk producing caterpillar has been used for silk spinning for centuries, but, strange to say, its employment for the purpose has been restricted almost exclusively to that region. One of its advantages is that its cocoons are not sealed like those of the common silkworm. One end of the cocoon is closed only with converging loops of silk. This renders it unnecessary to kill the insect when its silk is used.

Rubbing It In.

"What made the boss glare so at that man who just went out?" said one waiter to another.

"When he paid his bill for a fifty cent dinner he asked if there was any place in the neighborhood, anyhow, where a feilow could go and get a decent meal for fifty cents."—New York Press.

The Remedy.

The Mistress—Bridget, I must object to your having a new beau every night. The Cook—Thin buy betther food! One'll niver come again wance he's tackled what I have t' serve him!—Cleveland Leader.

In the Sunken Submarine.

"It's too annoying that we should be stuck down here. I bought myself the most splendid tomb only last week."—Lustige Blatter.

All philosophy lies in two words, sustain and abstain.—Epictetus.

HUNTING THE WALRUS.

The Eskimo Takes Advantage of the Animal's Curiosity.

In his frail skinboat it is a difficult and dangerous task for the Eskimo to go out to sea forty to sixty miles and intercept the walrus as he passes on his migration into the Arctic.

One carcass will fill his boat, for it weighs from 1,000 to 3,000 pounds. He hunts the walrus when they are lying asleep on the ice floes in herds from ten to several hundred. Death must be instantaneous, else with a few rolls or the peculiar lumbering, humping movement (seen of the seal when ashore), he makes the few feet to the water and then is lost, as he has not sufficient blubber and air to float. He has much natural curiosity, and if not scared by shots will come up close to your boat or the ice floe on which you are sitting, spurting, snorting and rolling his eyes; with his gleaming tusks and bristled snout he has an uncanny, goblin, monster-like appearance. A herd of fifty or sixty of them will come up en masse, raise high out of the water to stare at you, then snort, spurt and disappear again, only to come up on the same spot and repeat the maneuver indefinitely. Taking advantage of this the Eskimos hide behind ice hummocks and throw a harpoon into one, then snub the tough rawhide line around an ice cake. He must perforce come up to blow, and he is then killed with the rifle. The thick skin and the mass of blubber and meat beneath render him almost invulnerable.—Pacific Monthly.

MAKE THEM LAUGH.

A Bachelor's Idea of the Way Children Should Be Trained.

"The people who don't have to do things can always do them better than the people who are obliged to do them," said the cynical bachelor. "If you want to know how to invest money, ask a fellow who has never had any to invest. I suppose it's the same with raising children. Nevertheless, I am fond of children, and never having had an opportunity of raising any of my own, I am critical about the way other people, more fortunate than I, raise theirs.

"My brother has a youngster, a boy about six years old, and everything that kid wants he cries for. The minute he begins to cry he gets it, which, according to my reasoning, is all wrong.

"Why not make him laugh for it? It's just as easy for a child to laugh as to cry, and it's far more healthful, besides being much more cheerful for the surrounding populace.

"I've tried the experiment with him, and it works like a charm. If I happen to have anything he wants, and he cries for it, I make fun of him. 'That isn't the way to get it,' I say. 'Don't cry for it. Laugh for it.'

"It took only about two lessons for him to understand this, and you have no idea what a wonderful difference it has made in the disposition of that kid. Still, I'm only an old bachelor, and I'm not supposed to know anything about such things."—Philadelphia Ledger.

Took an Unfair Advantage.

Mrs. Dorkins — Yesterday I called Mrs. Grundage's attention to the fact that she had left the gate between our back yards open and that her chickens had come through and scratched up our flower beds, and she looked as if she would have liked to bite my head off. How foolish it is for people to get angry when you remind them that they have been careless about something they had no business to overlook!

Mr. Dorkins—I am glad to hear you say that, Maria. You won't mind if I mention that when I came home last night I found that you'd left both the back doors unlocked.

Mrs. Dorkins — Yes; you're always watching to see if you can't catch me in some little fault, and it makes you perfectly happy when you do!—New York Tribune.

Something to Live For.

Three little girls were playing. The mother of one came into the room and engaged the children in conversation. "Marian, what are you going to be when you grow up?" she asked.

"I am going to be a famous singer," she replied.

"And you, Susie, what are you to be?"

"Oh, I am going to write stories when I grow up," she answered.

"And what is Marjorie to be?" continued the mother.

Marjorie, aged five, thought seriously a moment, and then said, "Well, I am not sure, but I think I'll be a widow."—Delineator.

She Was Different.

"John," asked his wife, who was writing to one of her former school mates, "which is proper—to say, 'I differ from you' or 'I differ with you?'"

"Tell her you differ from her. I understand that she lets her husband keep part of his salary to have fun with himself."—Chicago Record-Herald.

A Failure.

Mamma—What in the world is making the baby cry so, I wonder?" Little Eva—I guess he's mad 'cause I tried to make him smile with your glove stretcher.—Chicago News.

Domestic Difficulty.

Old Lady (turning to neighbor during last act of tragedy)—Eh, mister, but them 'Amlets 'ad a deal o' trouble in their family!—London Punch.

"Time enough" always proves little enough.—Franklin.

Pricked His Own Bubble.

This story, found in Rev. Dr. Henry H. Jessup's book, "Fifty-three Years in Syria," seems to indicate that religious vagaries are as short lived in the east as elsewhere. A friend of Dr. Jessup, visiting Jerusalem, met a queer looking solitary stranger pacing the streets of the city, accosted him, and after the usual greetings remarked:

"You are an American, I infer."

"Yes, I am," replied the queer looking man.

"And what are you doing here, if I may ask?"

"Ah, yes, I'm glad you asked. You see, I've come to preach the new doctrine, that there is to be no more death. If men will only accept it, we'll abolish death, and there'll be no more dying, nor graves, nor coffins, nor funerals. We shall just live right on."

"But," said Dr. Jessup's friend, "supposing you should sicken and die, what then?"

"Oh," said the man, "that would bust the whole thing!"

And it did. The poor delirious apostle died a few months later, and with him his "new doctrine."

Couldn't Think of It.

The handsome young plumber laid aside a piece of lead pipe and, approaching the beautiful kitchen maid, said:

"You look awful good to me."

"Go on; quit your kiddin'," she replied.

"But I mean what I say."

"I ain't got any time to listen to you now. Can't you see I'm busy?"

"Yes, but what's the use workin' when a fellow wants to make love to you? Say, if I make this job last so I can come back tomorrow will you have your work out of the way so we can talk things over? You're the purtiest girl I ever seen."

"If you think you can make a fool of me by such silly talk you're mistaken."

"But I mean every word I say. I want you to try to learn to love me."

"If you want to make love to me come around this evening. I'll be here."

"What! On my own time? What kind of a chump do you think I am?"—Chicago Record-Herald.

Exact Thomas.

Thomas Hoar, the devoted servant upon whom Gilbert White, the English naturalist, depended to carry out his garden plans and to look after his comfort in many ways, was noted for his exactness. Mr. H. C. Shelley, in "Gilbert White and Selborne," gives an amusing illustration.

There was one occasion when Thomas came to report. "Please, sir, I've been and broke a glass."

"Broke a glass, Thomas! How did you do that?"

"I'll show you, sir," he rejoined as he disappeared for a moment. Returning with a glass in his hand, he let it fall on the floor, remarking:

"That's how I broke it, sir."

"There, go along, Thomas; you are a great fool," said his master, adding to himself, "and I was as great a one for asking such a foolish question."

Getting an Autograph.

A Munich boy of fourteen, who had seen and admired many of Rudolf von Seitz's paintings, was anxious to secure the painter's autograph, but did not know how to go about it. After much thought he wrote a letter, stating that he had sent a case of wine to the professor's address, and wanted to know whether it had been received. Thinking the matter of sufficient importance the painter did not write, but called at the address given, met the boy's mother, and the fraud soon became apparent. The boy was thoroughly scolded, and next day received this autograph note:

It often happens here on earth
That little rogues to great ones grow.
Some autographs for which you're trying
Can be procured without much lying.

Queer Looking Worms.

New Zealand, Australia, the Samoan and the Solomon islands as well as portions of the Hawaiian group are the homes of various species of worms with thick, heavy bodies and with a well defined neck connecting the body with a head that is a startling reminder of that of the monkey. In the Sandwich islands they are called "me-talu-ki," which means "creeper with a child's head." An old New Zealand legend says that at one time they were of immense proportions and threatened the extinction of all human life on the islands.

Irish Wit.

Swift scoffed at Irish "wit" in some biting lines. Nevertheless Irish wit is one of the most precious things. One soon has a surfeit of the professional funny man in England, the pawky Scot, the American humorist. The Irish peasant never disappoints, and with him it is all so naive and natural.—London Saturday Review.

Goodness and Greatness.

Goodness comes from within—from feelings, thoughts and desires resulting in actions. Greatness is the consequence of bold actions, great energy, ambition, enterprise and perseverance.

Impressed Her.

"You will never be able to make her believe that he is a liar.

"I wonder why?"

"I believe that he once told her she was beautiful."—Houston Post.

Backing.

Borrowby—The scheme would be a howling success if I could secure the proper backing, and— Grimshaw—The only backing I am doing this year is out.—Puck.

Integrity of life is fame's best friend.—John Webster.

Ruef, the Grafter

The sentence of fourteen years penal sevitude imposed upon Abe Ruef by Judge Lawler nearly a year ago has been affirmed by Justices Cooper, Hall and Kerrigan, and the arch grafter must now do penance for his many misdeeds against society. For four years Ruef has thrown every obstacle in the way of justice to avoid punishment for his crime. He has spent many thousands of dollars of his ill-gotten gains to keep out of the penitentiary, where he would have been sent long ago had it not been for the over-zealousness of Francis J. Heney, who raised the cry of the bribe giver is more guilty than the bribe taker in his effort to convict the victims of Abe Ruef's holdups in the metropolis, and they were many. This diverted attention from Ruef, as Heney intended it should, in order that he might make good his promised immunity to the rascal, whom he intended should go scot free as a reward for his part in carrying out one of the most damnable plots ever hatched to send to jail some of the foremost and most respectable professional and business men of San Francisco.

That was one of the reasons why Abe Ruef was enabled to keep out of the penitentiary for so many years and why the graft prosecution allowed a corrupt mayor and the boodling, thieving supervisors of San Francisco to go unwhipped of justice.

One of our facetious exchanges says that in Missouri the other Sunday a preacher at the end of his sermon said: "Let all in the house who are paying their debts stand up." Instantly every man, woman and child rose to their feet. The minister seated them and said: "Now, every man who is not paying his debts stand up." The exception was a careworn, hungry-looking individual, clothed in a last summer's suit, who slowly assumed a perpendicular position. "How is it, my friend," asked the minister, "that you are the only one who is unable to meet his obligation?" "I run a newspaper," he answered meekly, "and the brethren here who just stood up are my subscribers." "Let us pray," exclaimed the minister.

The Democratic representation in the next House of Representatives will be 227 against 163 Republicans and one Socialist, according to the roster of the House published last Friday. These figures give the Democrats a majority of 63 and a plurality of 64.

SONOMA COUNTY'S LEGAL GRIST MILL

Gontinues to Dispose of the Usual Number of Suits on Calendar Day.

Monday being calendar day in the superior court of the county, Judges Seawell and Denny disposed of the following cases:

The suits of Junker vs. Mt. Jackson Water & Power Co. and Mt. Jackson Water & Power Co. Co. vs. Junker were continued to December 5.

The suit of McDonald vs. Davis et. al. was dismissed from the calendar.

These matters were continued: Burton vs. N. W. P. R. R., Kate Mildred Gregory vs. Anderson, Ewing vs. Hilgerloh, Golden Eagle Milling Co. vs. Halleck, Towney vs. Wickersham Banking Co., to November 28.

The suit of Weber vs. Bremie was set for trial for January 17.

The demurrer was overruled in the suit of Heeser vs. Crowley.

The suit of Gotzsch vs. Christiansen went over for two weeks.

The divorce suit of Sereni vs. Sereni was set for trial on Nov. 28.

A change of venue was granted to San Francisco of the suit of Loud vs. Loud.

The suit of Hemenway vs. Cloverdale Mining Co. was continued for two weeks.

The trial of the suit of D. Cassassa vs. Fulton Winery Co. was set for January 24.

The trial of the suit of Payne vs. Payne was set for December 1.

In Judge Denny's department the following matters were disposed of:

The will of Elizabeth Potter was admitted to probate and Pearl E. Doss was named executrix.

Antonio Ramondo was named administrator of the estate of Margherita Romonda in a bond of $2,200.

The final account of the estate of E. A. Volkert was settled and allowed.

The fourth account of the Wyatt minors was settled.

The will of Mary Workman was admitted to probate and John Workman was named administrator.

The George Templeman estate matter was continued to Nov. 28.

The final account was settled and distribution ordered of the estate of Frederick Pohley.

Belle Pfister was named administrator of the estate of Susan M. Riddle in a bond of $5,800.

J. H. Gwinn was appointed to administer on the estate of Frederick Steinback in a bond of $7,000.

The matter of a return of sale of realty of the estate of C. L. Colgan was submitted to the court.

The estate of Lorenzo Prina was dropped from the calendar.

The estate of Sarah H. Matthews was continued to November 28.

A sale of personal property of the estate of Emily Preston was confirmed.

The petition for guardianship in the estate of George Chapekis was dismissed.

Distribution was ordered of the estate of John C. McIntyre. The final account was settled.

The Emiline Vorgenson estate matter was continued for a week.

These matters were continued: In reapplication of Alice Porterfield Wherity vs. June, Endicott vs. June, Green vs. Green, Cook vs. Brown, Shryer vs. Shryer, Maddock vs. Compodonie & Burns, to November 28.

The demurrer in the suit of J. A. Oakes vs. Petaluma Realty Co. was submitted.

The Human Lobster.

The lobster has always appealed to the Englishman as affording a nickname for his fellow Englishman. "Lobster" was a favorite term of abuse among the Elizabethans, though it is only conjectural that an allusion to red faces was conveyed. As signifying a soldier, "lobster" originated in the civil war, being applied to the Roundhead cuirassiers, as Clarendon explains, "because of the bright iron shells with which they were covered." Afterward the allusion was transferred to the soldier's red uniform. But that was the "boiled lobster." The "raw lobster" was naturally the man in blue, the policeman. In earlier days we find Grose explaining that "to boil one's lobster" meant for a clergyman to become a soldier.—London Chronicle.

The Man With the Iron Mask.

The Man With the Iron Mask was a mysterious French prisoner of state, whose identity has never been satisfactorily established. He was closely confined under the charge of M. de St. Mars at Pignerol in 1679, at Exiles in 1681, at Sainte Marguerite in 1687 and finally was transferred to the Bastile in 1698, where he died on Nov. 19, 1703, and was buried the following day in the cemetery of St. Paul under the name of Marchiali. Dumas made him a twin brother of Louis XIV.

A Volcano.

"What is a volcano?" asked the teacher.

"A mountain with a fire inside," said one.

A smile of comprehension spread over the puzzled face of the smallest pupil as she asked surprisedly, "Is that a mountain range?"

A Pungent Player.

The comedian had his benefit and thankful for the patronage of "kind friends in front" let off this impromptu, which was applauded:

Like a grate full of coals I glow,
A great full house to see,
And were I not grateful, too,
A great fool I should be.

More Important.

"See here, waiter! I found a collar button in this pie!"

"Didn't see nothin' of an umbrella, did yo', boss? Dah was one los' heah las' night."—Scribner's Magazine.

New Show House for Sonoma

T. C. Ryland has perfected plans for a new show house which will be erected on the Duhring lot adjoining the office of the Sonoma Valley company on Napa street. The building will be of attractive exterior finish and will have a frontage of 25 feet and a depth of 60 feet. The interior will be well ventilated and heated and the floor will have a slope of four feet from the front entrance to the footlights. Two hundred opera chairs and an electric piano will also be installed. It is expected to have the new show house completed by the first of the year. The lessee will be Wm. Collins, the veteran picture show man.

A Lucky Winner

At the turkey raffle in the Castagnasso building on Broadway last Monday evening Skelton Glaister was one of the luckiest of winners. He won the pig, two fine turkeys and four chickens on an investment of about a dollar.

George Breitenbach was subpoenaed before the superior court last Monday as one of the grand jury veniremen. He was one of the lucky ones who escaped service. Dr. O. Eastland to Retire From Business

The many friends of Dr. O. Eastland will regret to learn that owing to ill health he has sold his drug store and will retire from business. During his stay in Sonoma the doctor and his estimable wife have made many friends in both town and valley who will read this news with surprise and regret.

About two years ago while enjoying a brief vacation in San Francisco Dr. Eastland fell and broke one of his legs, since which time he has suffered much pain from the injury, and which, with a desire for a long-needed rest, is the reason for disposing of his business.

A Popular Officer

The official count of the ballots cast at the recent election develops the fact that Joe Ryan, the Democratic and Republican nominee for constable of Sonoma township, received every vote cast except two, and these were not against him either, it being an oversight on the part of two voters who failed to stamp an X opposite his name on the ballot. In filing his statement of election expenses the popular officer stated that his election cost him nothing.

THOMAS HOPPER WANTS HIS OWN

Aged Santa Rosa Capitalist Sues His Sons to Recover $300,000 Worth of Property.

Thomas Hopper, the aged capitalist of Santa Rosa, who some years ago transferred $300,000 worth of property to his three sons to keep it out of the hands of his second wife who had instituted divorce proceedings against him, now wants his possessions returned to him.

With this object in view he has commenced suit in the superior court of this county against J. W., H. T. and W. T. Hopper.

The complaint recites the fact of Mr. Hopper's marriage to his second wife and the divorce suit she instituted in 1901. At that time Mr. Hopper alleges he had realty valued at $100,000 and personal property amounting to $200,000 more. Fearful that his wife would strive to get a considerable portion of his estate the plaintiff alleges his sons came forward and urged him to convey his property to them, informing him, as he avers, that if he did so they would reconvey the same to him immediately upon the settlement of the divorce proceedings. He says he placed implicit confidence in them and did as was suggested. Soon after this, and while the divorce proceedings were still pending, he says he was taken seriously ill and it was believed that death was approaching. At this stage he alleges his sons came to him and importuned him to make another and more explicit conveyance to them, stating that in the event of his death they would properly divide the property, and if he recovered they would manage the same for him and he should benefit. Another agreement is also cited where each of his sons was to pay him fifty dollars per month for his support. Other allegations are made, together with the statement that J. W. Hopper and W. T. Hopper have transferred to their respective wives valuable portions of the property.

Mr. Hopper alleges that the sons have only paid Mrs. Cook and Mrs. Carpenter as their share of his vast estate sums much less than that would have been their portion of the property which would have gone to them at his death had he the disposition of the same. It is alleged that Mrs. Eliza Cook has received $12,000 and Mrs. Rosa B. Carpenter $9,500. The suit, the plaintiff alleges, is brought with the consent of his daughters, Mrs. Carpenter and Mrs. Cook.

To Our Friends and Patrons

In retiring from buiiness we wish a few words with our friends and patrons, it being impossible to see each one in person to express our appreciation of the loyal manner in which you have given us continuous support. The steady growth of our business has brought us to a point where lack of physical strength (having never fully recovered my strength since the accident and severe surgical operation two years ago) compels us to relinquish business and take absolute rest for a time. As successors we shall have Messrs. McElney & McCloud from San Francisco. In selling the drugstore to them they have come to us well recommended as gentlemen reliable and of wide experience and skilled in pharmacy, and we are pleased thus to be able to feel that the interests of the public will be in so good hands.

Again thanking our friends, one and all, for their generous support and unwavering friendship, we are

Very sincerely,
Eastland's Model Pharmacy,

Annual Meeting of Sonoma Brewery Stockholders

The first annual stockholders' meeting of the Sonoma Brewing Company, inc., is advertised to be held in Woodman Hall on Tuesday evening, December 6. The affairs of the brewery are in fine condition and it is probably the only institution of the kind in California that is free from debt. It is desired that every stockholder be present to hear the report of the officers, who are among Sonoma's most substantial and reliable citizens.

BAND BOYS DID THEMSELVES PROUD

Their Concert Was a Musical Treat and the Ball a Decided Success.

The concert and ball given by the Sonoma Valley Band in Union Hall on Thanksgiving eve was more than appreciated by the lovers of music and a great treat to the devotees of Terpsichore.

The band boys were greeted with a good house, although many familiar faces were missing in the audience that should have been seen there to encourage one of the best trained brass bands to be found anywhere in the state outside of the metropolis.

After the concert the floors of the large hall were cleared for dancing, in which seventy-five couples participated. Dancing to the music of a full well-trained brass band was a treat to those of our party-going people who had the good fortune to be present, and every number on the dance program was encored by the merry dancers.

Dancing was kept up until 2 o'clock and those present without an exception pronounced the concert and ball one of the most successful and pleasurable affairs ever held in this city.

CONTROL OF ELEDA SPRINGS INVOLVED

Mrs. Fetters' Suit to Oust Morris Levy and Regain Possession of Property Now On.

The law suit instituted in Judge Seawell's department of the superior court by Mrs. Emma Fetters against Morris Levy to recover possession of Eleda Springs came to trial last Wednesday. The suit is brought to recover control of the property, which was leased last spring to Levy for a term of years.

Plaintiff alleged in her complaint that Levy had violated the terms of the lease and that he had neglected to keep the property in good shape. The resort, which is one of the best appointed in the valley, represents an investment of $75,000.

The suit is being tried by Judge Seawell without a jury and is being conducted by Lawyers H. P. Mathewson of this city and W. F. Cowan of Santa Rosa on behalf of plaintiff and Thomas J. Geary for defendant.

A number of witnesses were examined and at 5 o'clock the case went over until Friday on account of the Thanksgiving holiday.

School Bond Election

For the third time this year the proposition of bonding the Huichica school district in the sum of $4,000 for building a new school house will be submitted to the voters on December 22. The proposition at the two previous elections has been defeated, but it will undoubtedly carry this time. The trustees of the district are Charles Lowell, Fred Batto and Charles Potter.

MATHEWSON BOY WILL RECOVER

The Little Fellow Who Was Run Down by Electric Car in San Francisco Out of Danger.

Donald Mathewson, the ten-year-old son of Attorney and Mrs. H. P. Mathewson, who was run down by an electric car in San Francisco two weeks ago and had his skull fractured, has been pronounced out of danger by the surgeons of the German hospital, whither he was conveyed the day after the accident.

The little fellow's escape from inftant death was most marvelous. The doctors at the hospital say had the fracture extended half an inch on either side of where they located it after the swelling had been reduced he could not possibly have survived. As it was he will not only recover from the injury, but there will be no serious after effects, such as paralysis or impairment of memory. It is expected the lad will have so far recovered in another week or two as to be able to return to his home here. Ever since the accident Mrs. Mathewson has never left her boy's bedside.

FAITHLESS WIFE; HEARTLESS MOTHER

Deserts Husband and Babies and Departs for Parts Unknown —Husband in Search.

Mrs. O. R. Evans, wife of an electrician employed in this place by the Northwestern T. & T. company, deserted her home in Santa Rosa last week and left for parts unknown.

The heartless woman, who deserted one of her two babies and an indulgent husband, left a note addressed to her spouse stating that she had left him for good and that even if he succeeded in locating her she would never return to him.

At the time of the desertion Evans was here attending to his duties as a local lineman for the company. When he returned to his Santa Rosa home Friday he found wife and babies gone and the house stripped bare of furniture.

Before taking to flight Mrs. Evans left one of her babies with a neighbor, taking the other with her.

At latest accounts Evans had gone in search of his wife and child, but had not yet succeeded in locating them.

MODEST VICTOR HUGO.

The Great Master Thought No Honor Too Great For Himself.

It was Theophile Gautier who said something to the effect that if he thought that one line of the great master, Victor Hugo, was bad he would not acknowledge it to himself if he were alone at the bottom of a dark well. On another occasion Gautier spoke of Victor Hugo as "a new Moses fresh from Sinai, charged to deliver the tablets of the law." Decidedly, Victor Hugo was a man who knew how to cast a spell upon those about him. For example, look at the following picture drawn in the "Souvenir sur Turgenieff:"

"One evening Hugo's admirers assembled in his drawing room, were competing with one another in the eulogy of his genius, and the idea was thrown out, that the street in which he lived ought to bear his name. Some one suggested that the street was too small to be worthy of so great a poet, and the honor of bearing his name ought to be assigned to some more important thoroughfare. Then they proceeded to enumerate the most popular quarters of Paris, in an ascending scale, until one man exclaimed with enthusiasm that it would be an honor for the city of Paris itself to be reramed after the man of genius. Hugo, leaning against the mantelpiece, listened complacently to these flatterers outbidding each other. Then, with an air of one engaged in deep thought, he turned to a young man and said to him in his grand style, 'Even that will come, my friends—even that will come.'"—Bookman.

THE OVARINAS.

Picturesque Barefooted Fish Hawkers of Portugal.

The ovarinas are perhaps the most interesting people in Portugal. They are probably the lineal descendants of the original inhabitants of the land, and now come from a small place called Murtosa (Estarreja), not far from Oporto. As the termination indicates, the overinas are the women of these people.

Both old and young, for even young children are thus employed, are exceedingly active and energetic. They go about barefoot, wearing a peculiar costume, and carrying huge baskets of a peculiar shape on their heads. They travel many miles a day and penetrate into every corner of the city, crying their wares in a loud, unmusical shout. They mount even to the sixth floors and bargain with buyers. They go barefoot not because of their poverty, many of them possessing expensive gold ornaments, but because they can thus more easily cover the many miles they run during the day. Attempts have been made to do away with this method of selling fish, but they have all failed. The customers like to deal with these fish girls and can purchase from them very small amounts.

Fish is not purchased by weight, but by the fish or part of fish. The price averages 12 to 15 cents per pound. There are not less than 2,000 ovarinas engaged in selling fish in Lisbon.—Consular Report.

When He Didn't Stutter.

A confirmed stutterer went into a restaurant and met a few casual acquaintances, who at once commenced chaffing him most unmercifully respecting the impediment in his speech. At last one of them, a pert little fellow who had been making himself rather conspicuous by his remarks, said, "Well, old man, I'll bet suppers round you can't order them without stammering." "D-d-d-done," says Brown, and, to the astonishment of the company and the discomfort of his challenger (all of whom were unaware of his being, as is often the case with stutterers, a first class singer), he beckoned the waiter and sang the order without the slightest hitch, then, turning round to his tormentor, said, "N-n-n-now, y-y-y-you c-c-c-can p-p-p-pay."—Argonaut.

The Start of an Author.

Soon after "Treasure Island" had appeared and attracted public attention to Robert Louis Stevenson, two gentlemen were traveling up to London from Norfolk. One of them was reading "Treasure Island." Presently, having finished the book, he dropped it into his traveling bag, remarking: "Well, I think I could myself write a better child's story than that." The other, who, by the way, was his brother, urged him to try. Six weeks afterward the former handed to the latter a complete tale in manuscript. It was "King Solomon's Mines," the first novel that made a reputation for Mr. Rider Haggard.

The Phrenological Test.

A distinguished phrenologist while dining at a hotel stated at the table that he had formed an opinion of the character of each one present. An Irishman said that he would propound a question and that if it was truthfully answered he would forever believe in phrenology. The phrenologist said he was satisfied and told him to proceed. "Thin," said the Irishman, "will yez be afther tellin' me am I married or single?"—London Telegraph.

Sweet.

"I think your wife has such a sweet voice."

"So do I. She gets $1,200 a year for spilling part of it in a church choir."—Boston Transcript.

A Possible Exception.

Wife—Isn't it a fact, dear, that handsome men are proverbially disagreeable? Husband—Well, I don't know. I always try to be pleasant.

How "Thon" Would Work.

"Thon" is the word which has been suggested for use as an English pronoun of common gender, a luxury which the English language has thus far had the fortitude to forego. It was considered suitable for English because it came from the Greek. Its use may be illustrated as follows:

If a parent desires to spank thon's (his or her, as the case may be) child thon (he or she) should take thon (him, her or it) across thon's knee. Then thon should remove thon's slipper, and after explaining to the child the reprehensibility of thon's conduct thon should apply the slipper to that portion of thon's anatomy which from time immemorial has been dedicated to that purpose.

It may easily be seen from the above how "thon" effects great clarification.—Lippincott's.

In Praise of the Eskimos.

Commander Peary in the narrative describing his discovery of the north pole devotes a very long chapter to the Eskimos, with whom he has had intimate dealings for eighteen years. He tells us that though they are savages they are not savage; that though they are without government they are not lawless; that though they are uneducated they exhibit a remarkable degree of intelligence. He assures us that they have no religion, yet he describes them as destitute of vice and ready to share their last meal with the hungry. He thinks it would be impossible to Christianize them, but they already possess the cardinal graces of faith, hope and charity, for "without them they could never survive the six months' night and the other rigors of their home."

The Greatest Historian.

By common consent the greatest of all historians is Thucydides, the Greek contemporary of Pericles and author of the history of the Peloponnesian war. One of the greatest tributes that can be paid to him is that, according to the estimate of a very able critic, we have a more exact account of a long and eventful period by Thucydides than we have of any period in modern history, equally long and eventful, and yet all this is compressed into a single volume. For concise, vigorous and yet intense presentation Thucydides has never been equaled. He is easily the king of historians.—New York American.

It Did.

"Do you know anything, doctor," said Mrs. Finnikin, "that will put a little color into my cheeks? I am so dreadfully pale."

"Well, madam," replied Dr. Blunt, "perhaps if I tell you that you have a hole in your stocking about the size of a quarter it may have the desired effect."

Just Talking.

Stella—I hear that Lizzie is talking of getting married again. Bella—I didn't know that she had been married once yet. Stella—She isn't. I said she was talking of it again.
